

Did You Know?

Social Service workers are required to advise the courts of the fathers involvement and progress. If child support has not been ordered, request that the court establish a support order.

Encourage positive interaction of the child with the father and refer for joint counseling if the child is age appropriate. This will allow child and father to process issues of separation and provide additional positive interaction.

Ensure the child is including the father and paternal family in development of the life book.

Social service workers should keep fathers informed of the child's activities and encourage his attendance in these activities outside regular visitation.
